GUIDE

4YOU

Sweden is synonymous with clean-cut good looks and sleek design. 4You, a Swedish concept in trendy men's wear, is no different and as it consists of two different sub-labels together with a shoe label, they've got all your wardrobe needs covered. Catering for both the urban cowboy or the more sophisticated lounge-living professional, 4You's styling maintains a certain masculine strength, while still providing room to play on style and expression. Whether it be buckles, worn leather belts, cuff links or shirts ranging from the flippant to the consummate professional, 4You's your perfect stylist.

MAGS MOON

When most of the jewellery on the streets looks like it's come straight out of the previous evening's "Learn How to Bead 101" class, you can't help but want some earrings or pendants that actually stand out from the crowd. Maryanne McDonald of Mags Moon is way ahead of you, and her contemporary Australian collection not only stands out but also blends international style with funky motifs. With their most popular range in the collection - the Café Series - inspired by Annette Middleton's imagery from the 1930s French Café society, and with four other series of "wearable art" designs in the collection, it's bound to have all fashion-forward females wanting a piece of the collection.

PAUL SMITH

Despite the recent overload of menswear designers, it seems very few labels manage to balance classic sophistication with a modern, edgy style. Perhaps that's why so many men still rely on Paul Smith when looking for something to truly 'make' an outfit. Whether it's crisp patterned French-cuff shirts, v-neck woollen sweaters, original cufflinks or cool leather wallets, Paul Smith garments never fail to impress. This season the British label promotes it's roots with a range of cufflinks and wallets bearing UK iconography such as double-decker buses and black cabs. For something a little out of the ordinary that you know will last season after season, year after year, check out the latest on offer from style icon, Paul Smith.

THE MAGIC OF SASHA DALZIELL

In these days of speed-dating, one-nighters and Jerry Springer, the floral decoration and overall splendour of a wedding, often leaves you more bedazzled than the actual ceremony. And with a love of flowers and the art of floristry that stems way back, silk flower designer Sasha Dalziell works one-on-one with clients to create that something special for absolutely any occasion. Studying at the Boerma Institute (a prestigious floral design school in Holland), she is one of only a handful "true" silk flower designers in the world, and her ethereal designs capture the surreal world of fantasy, while maintaining an edge and flair that epitomises style and sophistication.
